Little confidence in cabinet secrets

I'm so glad Barney Glover (Letters, November 3) has cleared everything up. An "unprecedented opportunity" and a "new iconic world-class museum". How exciting! Regarding the points raised by Leo Schofield (Letters, October 27) and others, there's no need to worry. It's all in the business plan.

Of course, in the best tradition of NSW politics, the business plan is "cabinet in confidence" – so no details can be revealed. We simply have to take Barney's word for it that it will be the greatest thing since sliced bread. Just like the business plans for the Cross City Tunnel and the Lane Cove Tunnel, I guess.

Hooray. Just what we need, another business case that is "cabinet in confidence", like WestConnex, the Northwest Rail Link, light rail projects, electricity/asset sales, etc. So, if the new museum at Parramatta doesn't stack up, just like the others, we, the people, will not be allowed to know. Isn't democracy great?
